Nigeria has been independent almost four decades ago. The Nigerian nation remains only the most populous but also the most economically promising of all countries of African descent. But this economically viable state has been strangled by the collective selfishness, disunity and intolerance of the ruling elite (Civilian and Military).

UDP is offering Nigerians a new platform to re-orientate and re-direct their energies towards building a Just and Egalitarian society, where liberty and progress shall flourish.

Consequently, we of the United Democratic Party (UDP) have resolved to make all the sacrifices required, suffer all the deprivations and pains necessary to move forward, linked in a human chain, overcoming all obstacles and difficulties until we reach our destination. We can at the end of our time be in a position to hand over to posterity a solid foundation and to persuade through constructive re-orientation of the Nigerian Military the need to subject themselves to democratic civilian authority at all times and in all circumstances.
